Cookie Policy.

This policy explains cookies and similar technologies on www.iquoto.global and https://secure.iquoto.global, including iQ-Trader built into the client portal with no separate address. It covers visitors, fully registered clients and people who signed up but have not completed registration. Read it with our Privacy Notice. Individual cookie and storage identifiers and their actual durations will be added in a subsequent update following verification by the development team and Compliance.

1 Who operates the service

1.1 iQuoto International Limited is SVG registration 25708 BC 2019. Registered office and correspondence address: The Financial Services Centre, P.O. Box 1823, Stoney Ground, Kingstown, St. Vincent & the Grenadines. Contact compliance@iquoto.global or support@iquoto.global for privacy or cookie questions.

1.2 This policy concerns the SVG Company's service. It does not automatically cover iQuoto Limited Mauritius or third-party websites. An embedded provider may have its own processing role and notice; that does not remove our responsibility for technologies we deploy or cause to operate on our service.

2 Technologies and information

2.1 A cookie is a small file stored through your browser. Session cookies normally expire when the session ends; persistent cookies remain for a specified period. Similar technologies include local storage, pixels, tags, scripts and device identifiers. Their legal treatment depends on what information they store or access and their purpose, not their label.

2.2 These technologies can process identifiers, device and browser information, language settings, pages visited, interactions and consent choices. Some identifiers or combinations of information are personal data. Do not put passwords, complete identity documents or full payment-card details into optional tracking tools. The Privacy Notice describes wider purposes, rights, security and international processing.

3 Purposes and categories

3.1 Strictly necessary technologies support functions you request, such as authentication, security, session continuity and recording cookie choices where genuinely necessary. They must be limited to that purpose. A technology is not essential merely because it is useful to our business or bundled with a vendor service.

3.2 We use Google Analytics for optional analytics to understand website and service use. Meta Pixel and TikTok Pixel are optional advertising technologies for campaign measurement, attribution and advertising-related tracking. Their precise identifiers, enabled features, processing roles and actual durations will be detailed in a subsequent verified update. We have not identified chat widgets, embedded video or separate security or payment tools as part of the deployed tool set. This does not imply that the portal lacks necessary authentication or security controls.

3.3 Our Company rule is to obtain prior consent for optional analytics and advertising technologies. Google Analytics, Meta Pixel and TikTok Pixel remain blocked until the user gives consent covering their purposes. Acceptance of necessary authentication, registration or trading terms does not consent to tracking. Any future change to this rule requires Compliance assessment and an updated notice and controls before deployment.

4 Choices and withdrawal

4.1 The banner uses the GDPR Cookie Consent (CookieYes) plugin and offers Accept, Reject and Manage preferences. Optional technologies are blocked before a valid choice. Acceptance and rejection must be equally easy and optional categories must not be preselected. Only the purposes chosen may be enabled; a rejection or absence of choice does not enable optional tracking. Scrolling, inactivity and accepting trading terms do not count as cookie consent.

4.2 You can reopen preferences through the Cookie settings link in the website footer or through the client portal, including where registration is incomplete. You can also contact support@iquoto.global for help or a withdrawal request. Using the on-screen settings is the direct way to change the current browser choice; an email request may require identification of the relevant account, browser or device and processing by Support. Optional tracking must stop for withdrawn purposes once the choice takes effect. Consent withdrawal must be as easy as giving consent. We remove identifiers under our control where appropriate; withdrawal does not invalidate earlier lawful processing or necessarily erase data already received by an independent provider. The Privacy Notice explains applicable rights and retention.

4.3 Rejecting optional cookies must not prevent use of ordinary account functions that can operate without them. A separately requested embedded feature may remain disabled until the relevant choice is made. Strictly necessary security and authentication controls may still operate within their proper purpose.

4.4 Your browser can also delete or block cookies. Blocking necessary technologies may prevent login or disrupt a transaction session. Browser controls may not govern pixels or every other storage technology; use our service controls as well. Preferences can be specific to a browser or device and may need to be selected again after deletion.

5 Providers retention and transfers

5.1 Website visitor choices are remembered for 90 days. For logged-in users, choices are remembered for 30 days from the last login. Logging in does not grant consent, revive withdrawn consent or extend permission to a new purpose; a remembered rejection remains a rejection. Choices may need to be made again after expiry, deletion or a change of browser or device. These periods concern remembered preferences, not the lifetime of every tracking cookie or associated server-side data. Consent records are retained for five years from the recorded choice event as an administrative schedule, subject to applicable legal limits and lawful holds. Compliance must document the necessity and lawful basis of that retention and limit the records to evidence needed to demonstrate choices. Evidence retention does not authorise continued tracking after expiry or withdrawal.

5.2 Provider headquarters do not guarantee that processing stays in that country. International transfers of personal data require any applicable lawful mechanism and safeguards. Third-party tools must be configured consistently with the chosen category and provider agreement. Necessary classification does not excuse excessive retention or unrelated sharing.

6 Requests and updates

6.1 Contact Compliance or Support about choices, access, deletion or other applicable privacy rights. We may verify identity proportionately and explain lawful limits. You retain any right to contact a competent privacy authority or court; use of a UK provider alone does not establish ICO jurisdiction over every aspect of our SVG service.

6.2 We update the inventory and notice when technologies or purposes change. A new consent-dependent purpose requires a fresh valid choice before activation. Material privacy changes must be notified as required by law; a website update cannot retrospectively validate tracking.

7 Technology inventory and governance

7.1 The in-house development team maintains the cookie and storage inventory for the website and client portal, including iQ-Trader. Compliance checks the results and updates this policy with individual names, providers, purposes, categories and actual expiry periods as that verified information becomes available. This issue describes the confirmed tool set and Company controls; it does not contain an itemised inventory or assert that a live technical audit has been completed. Analytics and advertising cookies must expire within 13 months. This is a Company maximum, not the assumed duration of each cookie, and it does not override the shorter preference-memory periods in clause 5.1 or permit tracking after withdrawal. Strictly necessary cookies are session-only where possible; any longer period requires a documented necessary purpose and proportionate duration. Development verifies consent-dependent tools after acceptance, after rejection, before any choice and after withdrawal, including pixels, scripts and local storage. Details of relevant domains, data accessed, provider notices, associated data retention and applicable transfer safeguards are included in subsequent updates where needed for clear disclosure.

7.2 Compliance owns the policy, the Board is the approving authority and the in-house development team implements the controls. The Company-confirmed effective date is 12 October 2026; this revision records instructions received through 13 October 2026. Compliance reviews quarterly and upon material change, with the next scheduled review on 12 January 2027. Retain the approval record and final text. The effective date does not retrospectively validate tracking or establish completion of a technical audit.

Risk warning. FX and CFDs are complex, leveraged financial products which carry a high level of risk to your capital. Trading on margin can result in losses that exceed your deposits, and these products are not suitable for all investors. You should ensure you fully understand the risks involved, and seek independent advice if necessary, before opening an account. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future results.
